Seth Williams Meets With President Obama and Senator Specter

Philadelphia---President Barack Obama made a stop here in the City of Brotherly Love to help raise money for Democratic Senator Arlen Specter's campaign and Democratic Candidate for District Attorney Seth Williams had the privilege to be among the invited guests. "It was a great event," says Mr. Williams, "the President and I were able to speak one on one and I promised him I would continue to work for justice in Philadelphia."

Seth and his family have been able to support and help out on the President's campaign from the moment Mr. Obama announced his intentions to head to the White House. The entire Williams family made the trip to Illinois so they could be present when then Senator Barack Obama announced he was running for President. They also traveled to New Hampshire for the primary there in January 2008, and when the President spoke at Seth's alma mater Penn State they were front and center. These are moments that are now a part of the Williams family history, and Seth says he was touched that the President remembered all of them.

Along with meeting the President, Seth was also able to speak with Senator Specter, Senator Casey, Former Philadelphia Asst. District Attorney Richard Sprague, Governor Rendell, Mayor Nutter and District Attorney Lynne Abraham. "What a great day to be with my peers and predecessors whom I respect and admire," says Seth.
